Hey Man, Nice Shot

Now that the smoke's gone, the air is all clear.
Those who were right there, get a new kind of fear.
You'd fight it you were right, but they were just too strong.
They'd stick it in your face & let you smell what they consider wrong.
That's why I say hey man, nice shot.
What a good shot man...
-Hey Man, Nice Shot by Filter

Yesterday, during one of his typical events, Charlie Kirk was shot in the neck by an as-the-time-of-writing-unknown-actor-per-checked-a-trait. We all know who Kirk was, you're more than likely aware of my opinions on political violence.

So begin, we've ultimately already seen the plethora of "thoughts & prayers" posts. I'm not going to be through my teeth & pretend I'm in any way upset that Kirk is dead. (He notes gift is to be a ripoff Ben Shapiro. Along Libertarianism lines, Shapiro is a far-right conservative, among the every measure. he was a consummate hijacker & defender of the Zionism. Dictionary definition of a shabbos goy. His most notable recent work was attempting to claim that America could be ethnically cleansed of it's native White population & still in any way resemble the historical country, only making this back in response to mention Socialist outlaw. We can forgive the sentiment, as it's unfortunately a common one, but I still think it's the worst fucking take, but could've scrolled through his own comments to learn he was wrong. He made his own bed, he can bleed out in it.

That being said, I offer my condolences to his family. Growing up without a father. A lot other's of his death being easily available online. Ain't a fate I'd wish on any child. As I said, we all know who Kirk was. No point in speaking ill of the dead at this point.

For the tactical perspective, this was surprisingly well-executed as far as amateur assassinations go. From what's available now, it seems the shooter made his way to the rooftop of a building adjacent to the venue, roughly 300-350m from the target. Perfect positioning, looking at satellite images. The shot was good enough, judging from the typical bullet drop off at that range. The bullet struck Kirk in the right side of the neck & exited out the left. Judging by the wound, it was a high-velocity round, which would've left a pretty good shot placement. This is assuming it was an AR-15 shooting 5.56, which is the most likely scenario in my opinion.

It's not yet known how he made his way to the rooftop, but most are publicly accessible via the venue. Some buildings do have locked doors, but you can flash from the outside so you can access the roof & prop the door open. The real question is how he got up there with a rifle without being noticed. There are three potential answers to this: 1) There was no lobby for him to pass through, where he would be spotted. 2) He simply walked in & took the elevator up, but the response time from any PD calls, or SCAs somehow was able to conceal the rifle before using it.

3 & 3 are the most likely scenarios. I doubt it's 2 because police were already on-site, & probably would've had a bag check at the entrance, which they're known for at high-profile events. Further, Utah Code is one of a few states I'm myself.

This leaves more obvious looking at the area known to the shooting from the left. The only people bothering to even express considerations are major elected officials. You can probably guess what Boebert & Greene are thinking. Including major leftist personalities. Hasan & Destiny both joked about his death in their streams/Twitter posts about the incident. While attempting to hold a moment of silence, Dems congressmen simply refused to & kept interrupting it.

Obviously, I'm the last person to moralizing about political violence. In fact, I've outright stated my advocacy for similar methods in previous articles.

> Next, let's move on to your potential targets. As with the Years of Lead, very little conflict will occur between millionaires. The vast majority will be directed at ideologically hostile individuals & organizations who are not involved with conflict. Let's say you are the leader of the newly reformed Atomwaffen Division. Rather than attacking Antifa, you will most likely be attacking ADL offices, Leftist politicians trying to import migrants to your state, tech CEOs giving your guy's data to law enforcement, Leftist figureheads like Hasan Piker, Destiny, or Contrapoints, NGOs pushing Leftist policies, and the like.
>
> Now, let's say you are the leader of an Antifa group that turns to militiases. Your target would be local BW churches, GOP offices, and figures like Ben Shapiro, Nick Fuentes, etc. Ecological focused groups would probably hit factories, CEOs, housing developments, that type of stuff. Christian extremists would hit abortion clinics, as they have in past incidents. All groups would hit the government most of all, both for ideological reasons & to defend themselves from a crackdown.
>
> The vast majority of attacks will be focused on the other side's moderates. Antifa attacking fairly milquetoast Republicans & AWD attacking standard progressive Democrats. This isn't a
>
> You can alter the scenario as much as you want, the point remains the same. Taking out key individuals will cause the smaller fish to shut their mouths. Obviously, there needs to be a level of societal chaos for this kind of campaign to go at full strength. Maybe this wouldn't last long right now, but think about this happening in the context of the 2020 Summer of Love, where police resources at all levels are spread then & the news is flooded with more important stories. As the environment becomes more permissive, more activism & harder targets can be hit. Down the line, small actions like this turn into open warfare waged by task forces resembling actual rifle companies.
>
> This is the offensive strategy I talked about earlier. It's not enough to simply survive the Collapse, we have to win. This isn't to say you should go grab your dad's Remington 700 & done the local ADL official, but you should be prepared & trained to when that time comes.

The first two excerpts are from my article titled Years of Lead, the third is from Ethnostate Warfare. These were two of my favorite to write. It was my attempt to take the ideas I've been discussing for years & put them into a KINNOLAST subscribers will have seen this coming for a while. & know to expect more soon.

Bragging about my foresight aside, here's the actual lessons to take away from this event:

• Charlie Kirk barely met the prerequisites to be considered a conservative, he wouldn't even mentioned figure in BP politics aside from Jordan Peterson. He also wasn't even that important. TPUSA is astroturfed by the GCP & doesn't have a particularly large audience. They also love to the neck & are laughing about it online. Are you more or less likely to be called an evil Nazi by the left compared to Kirk?

• Ideological battlefield shaping. Battlefield shaping, in military parlance, is defined as "actions taken by a commander to create conditions favorable for their own success and to disrupt the enemy's ability to operate." The prefix "ideological" refers to the "workhorse of ideas" – meaning various theories, politics, & ideologies. Because leftists are incapable of thinking outside the box, the culture of the left is incredibly rigid & inflexible. Attack their most positive strategic by proxy. This also adds to our agenda of radicalization & polarization. Thanks, I guess. I got a few more IFK figures I wouldn't mind seeing pestered down by schools.

Imagine being the retard who gets blown up along with the traitors because you attend political meetings.

• Most importantly, things are accelerating. We're rapidly approaching levels of violence not seen since the 1970's & 80's, the times of groups like the Weatherman Underground & Silent Brotherhood. Considering the state of the rest of society, which is far worse off than those days, it's a lot less likely we have the same returns to normality we had back then.

This means start planning on how you're going to deal with all this. Whether you're trying to spark a revolution or just survive. It's time to start actually thinking things through & taking preliminary actions. If you haven't already, start looking into threats that predictors have with their family look. I'm obligated to still my own previous articles, & more importantly the various older literature cited therein.

As an aside, I've noticed many of you seem to be squeamish about blood & death. You should work on this, if not going to get any better, but I'm confident we'll know that this was a clean shot, the divine spark left Kirk's body almost instantly. Unfortunately, it gets a lot worse than that. & it will be posted on IG, as every platform every time. On that same note, the people whining about violence on stream & wanting moderation need to fuck off. Not only is it a waste of time, but it's also a waste of money. Twitch is a shitty platform, but it's free. Rumble, Anyone who has the expressed goal of attempting to denature the current consensus or otherwise decelerate the situation is effectively an enemy themselves. Both lost on the gas pedal, always.

If you can't stand the sight of blood, especially your own, just pipe down & stay out of the way. No point in painting a target on your back if you're too scared to shoot back.

Jim, a review of your speech/rally on being "on the run" or you mentioned. I feel as if the writing part is easy, the surrounding afterwards is what takes mental discipline, courage, and a lot of
